1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a discussion of the
 2. various methods of determining the rate of reaction. It is shown
 3. that the most reliable method is the one which involves the
 4. measurement of the concentration of the reactants at various
 5. times. This method is based on the fact that the rate of 6. reaction is proportional to the change in concentration of the 7. reactants per unit time. The other methods, such as the 8. measurement of the volume of gas evolved or the change in
 9. color, are less reliable because they are subject to many
 10. errors.
